Protect your car as you spring into renovation mode
Whether you're heading to the DIY store or the local tip, van rental means fewer journeys and no rips or stains on your car interior

As the days get longer, lighter and warmer, homeowners across the UK will soon be planning garden renovations, decluttering, home improvements and landscaping upgrades. Europcar Mobility Group UK is reminding up-cyclers, gardeners and DIYers that vans aren't just for tradespeople, they can help make DIY jobs more efficient and prevent damage to their car.

It can be daunting to consider driving a van if you're used to being behind the wheel of a smaller vehicle, but modern vans provide car-like driving comfort and tech to help negotiate parking. The higher driving position also helps improve visibility during manoeuvres.

Many home and garden improvement projects involve moving waste, materials and furniture that won't fit in the average car. Even a small van can fit in far more than a car with its seats laid flat, and the work-ready wood, metal and plastic interior is easier to clean and won't tear like the fabric of car seats and ceiling lining.

"Whether you're ripping out ugly 1960s built in wardrobes or tearing down a rotten garden shed, a rental van is cheaper and easier than hiring a skip and can also help you get the replacement materials home without high delivery charges," commented Sarah Clarke, Consumer Marketing Manager at Europcar Mobility Group UK. "Hiring a van makes larger DIY jobs more manageable and efficient. Even better, you can cut your environmental impact by reducing the number of trips to the recycling centre or DIY store."

As the Easter break approaches, when home improvement in the UK is often at its busiest, hiring a van for a day, a weekend or longer can remove the logistical stress and allow DIYers to focus on completing their projects safely and efficiently. The Europcar van fleet features a wide range of vehicles to suit different needs, including the Mercedes Vito, Renault Master, and Iveco Daily, available at competitive rates from stations across the UK.
